The Ohio Soybean Council Foundation acknowledges that tomorrow's innovations in the soybean industries will be produced by today's best science students.

The combination of soybeans and science, technology, engineering and math has produced new uses and bio-products such as environmentally friendly soy-based inks, toners, adhesives and plastics.

Home-grown fuels like bio-diesel improve air quality and reduce dependence on non-renewable fossil fuels.

Ohio BioProducts Innovation Center is a research initiative that develops renewable specialty chemicals, polymers/ plastics.
